Decision. But province, First Nations groups remain staunchly opposed to pipeline

The federal government has given the green light to Enbridge to go ahead with the Northern Gateway pipeline through northern B.C.

Minister of Natural Resources Greg Rickford announced Tuesday that the government has accepted the National Energy Board's recommendation to allow the project to proceed, provided the energy company can meet the conditions imposed on the pipeline.

"After carefully reviewing the (National Energy Board's) report, the government accepts the independent panel's recommendation to impose 209 conditions on Northern Gateway pipelines' proposal," Rickford said in a statement.

Despite the approval, the B.C. government says it will remain opposed to the project until five conditions are met: Successful completion of the environmental assessment process, world-leading marine and terrestrial spill response and recovery plans, addressing aboriginal concerns and a fair share of benefits.

To date, Enbridge has satisfied only the first condition.

"Our position has not changed; it remains 'no,' " said Environment Minister Mary Polak. "If they are able to show new evidence ... we might reconsider."

Polak said there are dozens of permits Enbridge needs to acquire from British Columbia to proceed with the project.

"If there are adverse environmental effects then the permits won't be granted," said Polak.

The news sparked an instant reaction from B.C. First Nations, which vowed to fight the project in court.

"It's litigation right now," said First Nations Summit Grand Chief Edward John when asked what the next step is. "Many of our people want jobs and opportunity, but not under any conditions. For everyone, the risks seem to outweigh any of the benefits."

John said he wasn't surprised by the federal government's decision given its previous support for the project.

"It's like watching the movie Titanic and hoping for a different outcome," he said.

The First Nations Summit, Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs and B.C. Assembly of First Nations — along with 28 individual First Nations and tribal councils — issued an open letter that says they will "defend (their) territories whatever the costs may be."

"This project, and the federal process to approve it, violated our rights and our laws," the letter reads. "We are uniting to defend our lands and waters of our respective territories. Our rights and laws compel us to act."

Enbridge said it will make re-engaging with the provincial government and First Nations the next priority for its $7-billion, 1,177-kilometre pipeline project.

The company has reached equity partnerships with 26 of the 45 First Nations along the proposed route.

Enbridge CEO Al Monaco said it must meet roughly 100 of the conditions before construction can begin, and he estimated meeting the first batch of conditions will take more than a year.

"Like more than two-thirds of British Columbians and 130 First Nations, I'm outraged that the federal government wants to proceed with the Enbridge Northern Gateway twinned pipeline."

Pipeline won't be built for years, say experts, activists

Northern Gateway. Enbridge can't start construction until 209 conditions outlined by the federal government have been met

emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Don't expect bulldozers any time soon along the proposed Northern Gateway pipeline route.

At least, that's the message from legal experts and environmentalists reacting to the federal government's approval of Enbridge's pipeline to transport Alberta oil to ship from B.C.'s coast.

"Lawyers will be scrambling to launch actions," said Gordon Christie, director of the indigenous legal studies program at the University of British Columbia's faculty of law.

Christie anticipates some of the more complicated cases involving First Nation land rights and consultation could go all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada. This could take years, he said.

Injunctions against protesters are another legal tactic Christie expects the government and Enbridge to use once construction gets started, which will not happen for at least a few months, as Enbridge must meet the 209 conditions first.

If protesters try to block work, Christie anticipates the government will work with the company to stop them through the courts, a process that only takes days or weeks.

But, with all the planned opposition, he's less than optimistic that the pipeline will ever be built.

"I anticipate something like Clayoquot Sound in the late '80s," he said, where protesters blocked logging roads, ultimately forcing the government to meet some of their demands.

"I suspect this will be even more of a problem for the government than that was."

"We are deeply disappointed, but you need to look no further than the spate of legal challenges filed against this project to know that Cabinet's approval is by no means a guarantee that this project will ever be built," agreed Ecojustice staff lawyer Barry Robinson in a statement.

In the meantime, environmental organizations joined First Nations in denouncing the decision and saying they will do everything in their power to stop the pipeline.

"While Enbridge has overcome another hurdle with this federal approval, the company continues to face a wall of opposition in B.C. that won't come down until Northern Gateway is dead," said a statement from Nikki Skuce of ForestEthics Advocacy.

David Suzuki, the Wilderness Committee and the Dogwood Initiative also condemned the federal government's decision.

Groups are planning for civil disobedience and are trying to force a provincewide vote on the pipeline.

Kwantlen. Disclosure failures troubling, finance minister says

B.C.'s finance minister says he's troubled by a report that concludes Kwantlen Polytechnic University failed to meet government disclosure requirements by topping up salaries of senior executives.

But Mike de Jong says the findings of his ministry's report will not result in any sanctions or penalties against any individuals.

Instead, de Jong says the report recommends government employment bureaucrats at the Post-secondary Employers' Association and the Public Sector Employers' Council and staff within the Advanced Education Ministry conduct annual mandatory one-day disclosure and reporting sessions for executives handling employment issues.

The report also recommends board members at post-secondary institutions be made aware of their responsibilities and obligations when it comes to transparency in disclosing compensation agreements.

Advanced education critic David Eby, of the Opposition New Democrats, regularly raised questions in the legislature about so-called side-deals considered in efforts by the Kwantlen board to hire top executives, including a new president.

Advanced Education Minister Amrik Virk said the deals were not hidden or disguised, saying $50,000 payments to the executives were considered pre-employment contracts.

Axe incident. Vancouver police in standoff with empty house for 10 hours

Vancouver police spent 10 hours in a standoff with an empty house Monday after a man allegedly wielding an axe managed to escape unnoticed from a back door.

Around 8:30 a.m., police responded to reports of a man with an axe threatening another man on Main Street near East 51st Avenue.

When officers arrived, witnesses said the alleged victim had left the area and the suspect had gone into a nearby home.

When police went to the home, the man, who was outside, noticed the officers and ran into the house.

Officers surrounded the home and attempted to talk to the suspect while evacuating the occupants of the home and neighbouring duplex.

Around 6:30 p.m., officers with the emergency response team obtained a warrant and searched the house, which turned out to be empty.

Police believe the suspect likely ran out the back of the home immediately after seeing officers earlier in the day.

Investigators are continuing their search for the 25-year-old suspect and victim.

Another lawsuit filed against city councillors

'Unprecedented'. Latest case involves conflict-of-interest allegations

emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Yet another group of residents has filed yet another lawsuit against City of Vancouver councillors.

The residents filed a petition in B.C. Supreme Court, alleging Coun. Geoff Meggs and Coun. Kerry Jang acted in conflict of interest by participating in the public hearing for Heather Place rezoning.

They believe the councillors shouldn't have discussed the proposal by the Metro Vancouver Housing Corporation because they are paid a few thousand dollars annually to sit on the board, even though they excused themselves from the MVHC meeting on the topic.

If a court finds them in conflict, they will be removed from office.

This is one of numerous legal challenges the city has faced from groups of residents in the past year, including actions over a park in False Creek, a tower in Yaletown and mountain views in Mount Pleasant.

While the City of Vancouver isn't named in this particular lawsuit, the city provides indemnification for all councillors and therefore foots the bill.

"In my five years this would certainly be unprecedented to have this volume (of lawsuits) in this short period of time," city manager Penny Ballem said.

While it's common for people to sue the city over incidents such as sewer backups or falling off a sidewalk curb, Ballem said it's unusual for decisions made by council under the Vancouver Charter processes to face legal action.

"It seems like a mechanism to protest against a decision that a resident doesn't particularly like," she said. "In the end the judges will determine whether there's any foundation."

Ballem had to hire two extra litigators to help the legal department deal with both the lawsuits and the city's role as intervenor in the National Energy Board hearings on the Trans Mountain pipeline.

The city doesn't typically release costs on individual legal cases — and it's still in the early stages of many of them — but the work involves interviews with the legal departments, writing affidavits and preparing for court.

"It's very, very time consuming and it takes a lot of work because you have to make sure you've got your information right. It's not inconsequential in terms of the burden on (the) city," she said.

Minister asks teachers to just show him the money already

Full-scale strike, Day 1. Government says the union has yet to bring fully costed proposal

As teachers staged the first day of a full-scale strike in British Columbia, the province's education minister said negotiations would resume only if the union comes to the table with a fully costed proposal.

Peter Fassbender said the government's chief negotiator was ready to go back to the bargaining table with the BC Teachers' Federation on Tuesday afternoon.

"The BCTF has not put a fully costed, comprehensive proposal on the table. That's what we're waiting for," he said.

Both sides failed to reach an agreement on the weekend, leading teachers to walk off the job Tuesday.

Fassbender said there's a "significant gap" between the union and the government.

The union's latest proposal dropped wage demands to eight per cent over five years, down from its original request of 13.5 per cent over three years. It also proposed a $5,000 signing bonus and asked for new money specifically to deal with classroom conditions.

The government is proposing a seven per cent wage hike over six years and maintaining its offer of a $1,200 signing bonus if the deal is done by June 30.

Fassbender said the government is aiming for a contract that's in line with what's been negotiated with other public-sector unions, but added the BCTF's proposal appears heavy on benefits.

"It is at least two times more than what we've given to the other public-sector unions."

On the picket line in Victoria, school counsellor Lorna Maximick said she was optimistic about an agreement but is now resolved to what could be a summer-long strike.

"I think there's an agenda here with the provincial government, and I don't quite know what it is but I don't feel very good about it," Maximick said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Arrest made in daylight stabbing

Mounties in Langley are investigating after a man was stabbed multiple times in broad daylight Tuesday.

The stabbing unfolded around 11 a.m. when on-duty police officers from the Lower Mainland Unit saw a man in his early 20s stab another man near the Logan bus loop.

The victim, believed to be in his late teens or early 20s, was taken to hospital for non-life-threatening injuries. The officers followed and arrested the suspect.

Both the victim and suspect are known to police.

According to police, the victim is not being overly co-operative.

Man gets 11 years in jail for keeping HIV status a secret

A Lower Mainland man has been sentenced to 11 years in prison for not disclosing his HIV-positive status to several sexual partners.

Bongani Nyoni was sentenced June 14 after being found guilty of three counts of aggravated sexual assault by a jury earlier this year.

New Westminster police first became aware of the situation in November 2009, when the department received an anonymous tip that Nyoni was having sexual contact with several women without divulging his status to them.

B.C., First Nation reach land deal

The B.C. government is heralding the sale of land to a First Nation in an area Premier Christy Clark hopes will one day be at the heart of a booming liquefied natural-gas industry.

Clark was in northern B.C. to mark the sale of land in downtown Kitimat to the Haisla Nation.

The land has sat idle since 2005. The First Nation will now enter negotiations with the District of Kitimat to discuss how it will be developed. Ellis Ross, chief counsellor of the Haisla Nation, says current plans include a hotel and condominium development, a restaurant and a shopping centre. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rob Ford launches his re-election campaign in Toronto on April 17. STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

Toronto to see if Ford returns a changed man

Back from rehab.
Embattled mayor plans to resume duties June 30

Only time will tell whether Rob Ford's stint in rehab has changed him, some of the Toronto mayor's colleagues said Tuesday, just weeks before his scheduled return to city hall.

Ford plans to come back on June 30, according to a letter he sent to the city clerk's office.

The letter says he will return to resume his duties "in the later portion of the afternoon."

Coun. Paula Fletcher said city hall has been "calm and scandal-free" in the mayor's absence, a sentiment echoed by other councillors.

"Ever since his departure … things have been very calm, there's a lot of business being conducted, there's a level of civility I believe has re-entered city hall," Coun. Kristyn Wong-Tam said. "It clearly demonstrates to me that when he's here, he's a distraction."

"I don't want to predict how Rob Ford will behave," Coun. Janet Davis said. "I don't think anybody's ever been able to do that." 680NEWS/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Suspect in envoy's death captured

A Libyan militant suspected in the deadly Sept. 11, 2012, attack on Americans in Benghazi has been captured and will be tried in the U.S., the first apprehension of an alleged perpetrator in the assault that killed Ambassador Chris Stevens and three others.

U.S. President Barack Obama said Ahmed Abu Khattala, a senior leader of the Benghazi branch of the terror group Ansar al-Sharia in Libya, will "now face the full weight of the American justice system."

"The fact that he is now in U.S. custody is a testament to the painstaking efforts of our military, law enforcement and intelligence personnel," said Obama, whose administration has come under intense criticism from Republicans for being unable to apprehend those responsible for the attack.

Abu Khattala, who will be tried in U.S. court, was captured by American forces on Sunday and is being held in an undisclosed location outside of Libya, according to Pentagon press secretary Navy Rear Adm. John Kirby.

Stevens was the first U.S. ambassador to be killed in the line of duty in more than 30 years.

Last year, the U.S. filed charges against Abu Khattala and a number of others in a complaint.

The complaint, unsealed Tuesday, charges Khattala with providing, attempting and conspiring to provide material support to terrorists.

Until now, no one had been arrested in the attack in which a group of militants set fire to the U.S. diplomatic mission in Benghazi. In August, Abu Khattala said that he was not in hiding, nor had he been questioned by Libyan authorities over the consulate attack. Abu Khattala was the commander of a militia group called Abu Obaida Bin Jarrah at the time of the attack. In August, he said he had abandoned the militia.

Reserve. Obama to ban drilling in parts of Pacific

Moving to protect fragile marine life, U.S. President Barack Obama announced plans Tuesday to create the largest ocean reserve in the world by banning drilling, fishing and other activities in a massive stretch of the Pacific Ocean.

Using presidential authority that doesn't require new action from Congress, Obama proposed to expand the Pacific Remote Islands Marine National Monument, which President George W. Bush designated to protect unique species and rare geological formations. The waters are all considered U.S. territory because they surround an array of remote, mostly uninhabited islands that the U.S. controls between Hawaii and American Samoa.

One five-year-old killed. Rare twin tornadoes send another 19 to hospital.

A storm packing rare dual tornadoes tore through a tiny farming town in northeast Nebraska, killing a five-year-old child, leaving grain bins crumpled like discarded soda cans and flattening dozens of homes.

Stanton County Sheriff Mike Unger estimated that 50 to 75 per cent of Pilger, Neb., was heavily damaged or destroyed in the storm. The local school is likely beyond repair, he said.

"It's total devastation," Unger said.

The storm was part of a larger system that started to track across the U..S. midsection Monday afternoon. More stormy weather was forecast Tuesday in an area stretching from eastern Montana to New York. The Storm Prediction Center in Norman, Oklahoma, said powerful winds, large hail and a few tornadoes are possibly, particularly in Iowa, Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

The Stanton County Sheriff's Office said a five-year-old child was killed but did not identify the child further or provide details of the circumstances of the death. At least 19 people were taken to hospitals for treatment.

The National Weather Service said the two twisters touched down within roughly 1-1/2 kilometres of each other. Crews planned to examine the area Tuesday to determine the intensity of the unusual twin twisters, said Barbara Mayes, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Valley.

"It's less common for two tornadoes to track together for so long, especially with that same intensity," she said. "By no means is it unprecedented. But we don't see it often."

Nebraska Gov. Dave Heineman declared a state of emergency, and the National Guard was preparing to assist local emergency responders and help with the cleanup. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alleged victims want to drop complaints: Brazeau's lawyer

The lawyer for suspended Sen. Patrick Brazeau says the alleged victims in an assault and threats case against his client want to withdraw their complaints.

Defence lawyer Gerard Larocque told the court on Tuesday that one of the two people has actually written the Crown about dropping the complaint filed in April.

Brazeau was charged with assault, possession of cocaine, uttering threats and breaching bail conditions following an altercation involving a man and a woman at a home in Gatineau.

Crushed to death

Cluttered floor collapses, kills likely hoarder

A U.S. woman described by police as an apparent hoarder was crushed to death when a floor piled with clutter collapsed into her basement, medical officials said Tuesday.

Officials said 66-year-old Beverly Mitchell's body was found Saturday as crews were using a backhoe to remove debris from her home. She may have been dead for more than a week, police said.

Authorities didn't even notice that the floor had collapsed Thursday because all they saw was ceiling-high clutter along the walls and waist-high clutter in other areas, police said.

Is sodium reduction plan worth its salt?

A pinch of skepticism. Some are questioning the effectiveness of the FDA's forthcoming voluntary guidelines to reducing salt in food

Food companies and restaurants in America could soon face government pressure to make their foods less salty — a long-awaited federal effort in the U.S. to try to prevent thousands of deaths each year from heart disease and stroke.

The Food and Drug Administration is preparing voluntary guidelines asking the food industry to lower sodium levels, FDA commissioner Margaret Hamburg told The Associated Press. Hamburg said in a recent interview that sodium is "of huge interest and concern" to the agency.

It's still unclear when the FDA will release the guidelines, despite its 2013 goal to have them completed this year.

Hamburg said she hoped the agency would be able to publicly discuss the issue "relatively soon." On Tuesday, FDA spokeswoman Erica Jefferson said there is no set timeline for their release.

Health groups would prefer mandatory standards, but say voluntary guidelines are a good first step.

Still, Michael Jacobson of the Center for Science in the Public Interest says he is concerned companies may hesitate, worried that their competitors won't lower sodium in their products.

Retailers to do the math for you

New York's attorney general said Tuesday Costco, CVS, FreshDirect, Walmart and Walgreen have agreed to list unit prices on their websites and mobile apps for shoppers across the U.S.

A unit price tells consumers how much a product costs by each unit of weight. For example, a 16-ounce bottle of shampoo costing $5.99 US would have a unit price of 37 cents per ounce.

THE MYSTERY OF (NOT-SO) YOUNG ADULT LIT

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

Guilty — that's me — of reading Young Adult novels instead of the latest literary fiction by the latest literary lion or lioness.

I devoured Harry Potter, The Golden Compass, even Hunger Games (although I admit it got a little tedious by Volume Three), while nibbling demurely at some prize-winning tome in which generations of people where it snows a lot have been artistically victimizing each for ... generations.

Don't get me wrong. As a card-carrying English graduate, I fervently support the production of literature. I'm just having a tough time getting through it. And I'm not alone.

The Harry Potter series has sold 450 million copies to date, never mind the movies. Most literary novels are borrowed from libraries and returned, often unread.

This last weekend, The Fault in Our Stars, a movie based on a book about two teenagers in love while both are dying of cancer, outgrossed everything else Hollywood threw at us, including Edge of Tomorrow, the latest Tom Cruise misadventure in advanced ordnance ($66 million US versus $40.5 million). Kids, do you know where your parents are?

In a Publisher's Weekly study cited in a CBC story, 55 per cent of Young Adult books are bought by adults, 78 per cent for their own enjoyment. (Of course, the other 22 per cent could be lying. "I'm just buying this for my daughter!")

Is this predilection for Young Adult fiction evidence of a mass dumbing down or an epidemic of ADD? Well, probably. But I think there's more going on. Yes, Young Adult novels are easier to read. Yes, they usually end in a happy, or at least a satisfactory, ending.

Is that so wrong? It may have something to do with "plot." Say what you will about Harry Potter and his Hogwarts homies, the entire series is driven by an intertwining network of fiendishly entertaining plotlines that keep everyone on tenterhooks until the end of volume eight. Author J.K. Rowling tried her hand at literary fiction with The Casual Vacancy, but Potter fans held their breath and tapped their feet until she came up with The Cuckoo's Calling, a detective thriller she tried to write under a pseudonym. Of course, she was almost instantly uncloaked. "Cuckoo" displays all the page-turning virtues of the Potter series, but it's allegedly written for grownups.

Speaking of plot, A Song of Ice and Fire, the series of books upon which Game of Thrones, the most popular HBO cable series ever, is based, so far features five exquisitely plotted volumes. It also features more sex, incest, gore, betrayal and terror than a Quentin Tarantino grindhouse tribute, so it's definitely not for kids, although with today's kids, you never know.

So you can put this shameful fascination with Young Adult and genre fiction down to a worldwide failure to launch — or maybe a driving plot is the missing ingredient in more-heralded fare. I wish we could ask Charles Dickens, the master of great literature featuring great plots.

But he died, alas, without finishing The Mystery of Edwin Drood.

Sikh chic

In their Kickstarter-funded series The Singh Project, London-based photographers Amit and Naroop profile British Sikh men and show how they embrace both the turban and the times they live in. COURTESY AMIT AND NAROOP

'Discipline and spirituality'

AMIT AND NAROOP
London-based photographers

What was the inspiration behind your project? The idea actually came from how beards are now trendy in fashion and mainstream culture. We felt it was pretty interesting to look at it from Sikhism, where the beard — a symbol of discipline and spirituality — has been an integral part of a man's identity for hundreds of years.

Having a beard has gone mainstream. Any hope for the turban? It would be amazing if it did. Young Sikh men are starting to tie their turbans with elaborate cloth, so it's an extension of their style. But I doubt right now that this will catch on with non-Sikhs.

Have British Sikh men always been expressive with their dress sense? The Sikh men we profiled are doctors, watchmakers, designers and architects, and they all take great pride in wearing a turban and beard. But some of the older Sikh men we interviewed described how they had to cut their hair when they first came to England just to be accepted so they could get a job. At the other end, lots of the younger men have embraced the tenets of Sikhism, grown their hair, and left behind their previous false pleasures like drinking, smoking or getting themselves into trouble. OK Go strikes again

andrew.fifield@metronews.ca

Music video production house and occasional rock band OK Go has unleashed another single-take (after at least 50 attempts) parlour trick ahead of its Hungry Ghosts album's October release.

Fully embracing its shtick, the gang has graduated from Rube Goldberg devices and treadmill choreography to a funhouse of mirrors, pulleys and other optical illusion trickery. It's pretty cool stuff, and hey, the song isn't so bad, either. (OK Go/YouTube)

Some films hit all the right notes

Rock 'n' roll reels. Jersey Boys is just the latest film inspired by music's best and brightest

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Rock 'n' roll and the movies have always had an uneasy relationship. For every film that hits all the right notes, like Quadrophenia or A Hard Day's Night, there's a host of tone-deaf films like Light of Day, featuring Michael J. Fox and Joan Jett as musical siblings, or Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, a glam-rock-and-disco re-imagining of the Beatles classic.

Rock 'n' roll biographies are equally hit-and-miss. In The Buddy Holly Story, the toothy Gary Busey earned an Academy Award nomination for his portrayal of the rock legend, but Roger Ebert sneered that Dennis Quaid played Jerry Lee Lewis in Great Balls of Fire "as a grinning simpleton with a crazy streak."

This weekend, Jersey Boys — directed by Clint Eastwood, and based on the Tony Award-winning musical — tells the story of '60s hitmakers The Four Seasons. Songs like Big Girls Don't Cry, Walk Like A Man and Can't Take My Eyes Off You made them one of the biggest-selling rock acts of all time.

Lesser known than the Four Seasons but louder, faster and dirtier were The Runaways, the subject of a rambunctious 2010 movie.

Set back when you could still drink a bottle of stolen booze in the shade of the Hollywood sign without being arrested for trespassing, The Runaways focuses on two glue-sniffing, glam-rock-obsessed tough girls named Joan Jett (Kristen Stewart) and Cherie Currie (Dakota Fanning) who formed the underage all-girl band. The music of The Runaways was described as the "sound of hormones raging," and this film captures that, transcending the formulaic aspects of the story by catching the gritty spirit of in-your-face teenage rebellion.

I'm Not There is a hard movie to describe. It's a metaphoric retelling of Bob Dylan's life, but none of the characters in it are called Bob Dylan. Most of them don't look like Dylan, and the one who most looks like Dylan is a woman. Unlike Walk the Line or Ray, which were both standard-issue Hollywood biopics, there is nothing linear here, but then there is nothing straightforward about the man, so there should be nothing straightforward about the movie.

Sex & Drugs & Rock & Roll is the title of eccentric English singer Ian Dury's biggest hit and the 2010 biopic about his eventful life. Starring Andy Serkis, the film is as high voltage as one of Dury's legendary live performances.

Finally, the film Control details the short life of Joy Division singer Ian Curtis (Sam Riley). After seeing the film at Cannes, Curtis's bass player Peter Hook said he knew the movie "would be very well received because, even though it's two hours long, only two people went to the toilet the whole time. In fact, one of them was (Joy Division founding member) Bernard (Sumner). The other one was a 70-year-old woman."

Jersey Boys hits theatres June 20. CONTRIBUTED

John Lloyd Young

Riding in cars with Jersey Boys

John Lloyd Young, who won a Tony for his performance of Frankie Valli on Broadway, plays the singer in the big-screen adaptation of Jersey Boys.

Teamed with Tommy DeVito (Vincent Piazza) and Nick Massi (Michael Lomenda), Valli rose from the streets to the studio — and with the addition of songwriter and keyboardist Bob Gaudio (Erich Bergen), from clubs to concert halls as the Four Seasons, one of the top-selling acts in rock history.

Young, Lomenda and Piazza bonded on the third day of the shoot. "We were shooting a scene where we were in the middle of the desert and our car breaks down," Young says. "We end up having to hitch a ride with a farmer and the back of the truck is filled with pigs. The three of us guys were actually in the back of this truck with a bunch of pigs, doing take after take, and every time the truck started it was like a lesson in pig excretory systems.

"It was a sequence that's been cut from the movie," he says. "But it proved to be a real bonding experience for us."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Jason Segel's junk made his mom cry

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Jason Segel's nude scene in Forgetting Sarah Marshall was big news even before the movie came out. Film buffs knew that by purchasing a ticket to the movie, they were also getting a ticket to Segel parading his junk around.

However, one viewer was caught entirely by surprise: Segel's mom.

Jason Segel wrote Forgetting Sarah Marshall in addition to starring in it, so Mrs. Segel had no one to blame but her own son. That did little to take the edge off the traumatic experience. Segel tells Vanity Fair that the famous nude scene made his mom cry.

After she'd recovered from the initial shock, Mrs. Segel decided to make sure others did not go into the experience as unprepared as she had been. She sent out a mass email to friends and family that read, "I would like to inform you all that Jason has chosen to do full-frontal nudity; however, it is not gratuitous and is essential to the plot."

Which is pretty generous, really. I am quite certain that if I made my mom watch a movie that featured my junk, she would be too upset to track whether it was essential to the plot or not.

Dr. Dre

Forget about Dre? Not after that tip!

Dr. Dre certainly knows how to treat the wait staff. The rapper, producer and Beats honcho recently paid a visit to Skybar at the Mondrian Hotel in West Hollywood to enjoy some tequila shots, take photos with fans and compare notes with the DJ. And when he decided to leave, Dre reportedly left his waitress a $5,000 tip, according to Radar Online. "She was stunned," a source tells the website.

Robert Pattinson

Pattinson says he's not headed to a galaxy far, far away any time soon

Robert Pattinson wants to make it very, very clear that he will not be inheriting any iconic roles made famous by Harrison Ford anytime soon.

Separate online rumours had the Twilight star tapped to play Indiana Jones in a series reboot and Han Solo in a stand-alone Star Wars spin-off, but Pattinson himself doesn't know where these stories are coming from, according to Us Weekly. "Why is that coming out? I honestly don't understand what it's all about. Man, I wish," he says in response to the Indiana Jones idea. "It's like all those other B.S. rumours."

As for visiting a galaxy far, far away? "I didn't even know there was a Han Solo spinoff coming out," he says. "Sounds like a cool spinoff. I'll watch it!"

The artsy side of Pittsburgh

Carnegie to Warhol. Pittsburgh may register as a gritty steel-town in your consciousness, but it's also home to some pretty great art

ANDREW JOHN VIRTUE DOBSON
@dobbernation

While Pittsburgh is best known for its steel-town roots, today the blue-collar city taps into its innovative past by providing inspiration to art lovers.

I start my art crawl a short hop, skip and jump from my plush bed at the Fairmont Pittsburgh. The property invites guests to take a walk back in time to explore over 26,000 artifacts recovered from the 2007 excavation of Three PNC Plaza.

Objects on display in the hotel's public spaces date from 1840 to 1872, offering visitors a glimpse into what life would have been like here in the mid-1800s. Marvel over antique glass bottles, gilded decorative accessories from France, botanical prints and tiles and cute Kestner dolls.

The Carnegie Museum of Art was made possible by the generous support of Andrew Carnegie, the industrialist who invested his steel-town success in the arts.

While most art museums founded at the turn of the last century focused on collections of well-known masters, Carnegie envisioned his museum collection would consist of the "Old Masters of tomorrow."

In 1896, he initiated a series of exhibitions of contemporary art and proposed that the museum's paintings collection be formed through purchases from this series. Carnegie, thereby, founded what is arguably the first museum of modern art in the United States, which at the time featured Winslow Homer, James McNeill Whistler, and Camille Pissarro.

Today's collection is distinguished in American art from the mid-19th century to the present, in French Impressionist and post-Impressionist paintings, and in significant late 20th-century works.

Local celebrity Andy Warhol's groundbreaking work has crowned Pittsburgh as the world headquarters for Pop Art.

The city's not-to-be-missed Andy Warhol Museum is the most comprehensive single-artist museum in the world, offering exhibitions year-round and displaying never-before-seen artworks from a collection that includes 900 paintings, 100 sculptures, nearly 2,000 works on paper, more than 1,000 published and unique prints, and 4,000 photographs.

The Andy Warhol Museum is home to 900 paintings and 100 sculptures. PHOTOS: ANDREW DOBSON/METRO

Visitors to the museum indulge in a whimsical chronicle of the oddball artist's life, highlights which include childhood sketches, quirky collection of travel paraphernalia, Polaroid portraits of American icons (Liza Minnelli, Diana Vreeland, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Mick Jagger) and an evolution from wildly successful commercial illustrator to pop art superstar.

The Mattress Factory offers the world's most famous installation art experience.

Andy Warhol

- Born. Aug. 6, 1928 in Pittsburgh, Penn.
- The Andy Warhol Museum. Is the largest museum in the U.S. dedicated to a single artist.

Since 1982, the groundbreaking museum has presented new works by more than 600 artists working in residence.

The organization is dedicated to providing artists with the space, materials, assistance and freedom to explore new ideas and create works of art that help us see the world in fresh new ways.

Today The Mattress Factory is made up of three distinct buildings featuring work by notable artists such as James Turrell, Greer Lankton, Yayoi Kusama and Chiharu Shiota.

Bucket list

Fogo Island, N.L.

We all know the song I's the B'y that put Fogo, Twillingate and Moreton's Harbour in our collective Canadian mindset. But Fogo Island, the largest island in the archipelago at the north-east edge of Newfoundland, has been busy reinventing itself, with the help of the beautiful Fogo Island Inn, on the north shore near Joe Batt's Arm. Open for a year now, the ultra-modern inn was designed by Todd Saunders and uses locally crafted furnishings to adorn the 29 rooms. Frette linens, electronic bathrooms, rooftop hot tubs and chef Murray McDonald counter the quaintness with full-on luxury, for a comfort that surprises many. From $875 per night. DOUG WALLACE/METRO

Finding adventure in Canada

Vacations with an edge. There are daring must-dos to be found all across this country — try one this summer

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

From coast to coast, there are some crazy adventures awaiting travellers looking to push their limits. If you are looking for a shot of adrenalin on your summer holiday, consider one of the following:

Face-first fun in New Brunswick

In northeastern New Brunswick, try face-forward rappelling — known locally as deep-elling — down a 41-metre rock wall in the Grand Falls Gorge. After some personalized training on how to effectively edge yourself down the rock face, you are fitted with gear and away you go. Anyone can do it as there are no weight restrictions or age limits. For $100 you get four jumps.

Swimming with dolphins might be fun, but wouldn't you rather hit the ocean to see some humpback whales? ISTOCK

A whale of a time in Newfoundland

A few years ago I went to New Zealand and snorkelled next to dolphins in the wild. It was incredible, but apparently I was thinking small. In Conception Bay, Newfoundland you can swim next to humpback whales. For $199 per person, Ocean Quest Adventure will take you on a half-day snorkelling trip where all that's between you and these majestic 30-tonne creatures is your wetsuit and a few metres of ocean water.

Living on the edge in Toronto

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, Toronto's EdgeWalk is the world's highest external walk on a building. Brave souls are attached to an overhead safety rail via a trolley and harness system and then walk hands-free on a 1.5-metre wide ledge encircling the top of the CN Tower's main pod. After completing safety training, guides encourage you to lean back over the city with nothing but air and breathtaking views of Lake Ontario beneath. Cost is $175 per person.

Away in the clouds in Alberta

Via Ferrata, or iron way in English, is an activity that has you follow an engineered vertical pathway of permanently fixed cables and metal rung ladders over rock faces. There are several of them across Canada, but the longest one in North America is part of a three-day heli-hiking excursion to Mt. Nimbus, Alta. offered by Canadian Mountain Holidays. The highlight is a mind-blowing suspension bridge lying between two spires, 600 metres above the valley floor.

Biking the sky in B.C.

If you prefer to get around on two wheels, consider heli-biking in Whistler, B.C. A helicopter takes you and your bike up more than 1,800 metres for incredible panoramic vistas of the Coast Mountain Range, Whistler and Blackcomb Mountain. Contact Bear Back Biking for information and assistance on bike rentals, guides and getting group deals on the helicopter charter.

What not to do: the resumé edition

Polish off that paper.
Make sure that your CV is up to par and won't see the recycling bin

LAUREN MARINIGH
TalentEgg.ca

Your resumé is quite possibly one of the most important documents saved on your computer.

Why?

A resumé is the key ingredient to helping land your dream job.

Here are some things to avoid when you're putting together a resumé.

Missing the specifics

Don't leave an employer guessing. Your resumé is supposed to indicate that you're a good fit for a position, so it must include any relevant information.

Briefly identify the overall function of your role before focusing on specific tasks and accomplishments that connect your skills to the job opportunity at hand. Avoid broad statements that don't communicate specific information.

Don't rely on a job title to catch an employer's eye. While previous experience in a similar role is an obvious asset, employee responsibilities can differ substantially between different workplaces.

Leaving out experience

If you're looking for a first professional role or are switching industries, you'll need to rely on a variety of work experiences to position yourself as a compelling new hire.

Don't assume that past work experience in a different field isn't relevant to a position in your industry of choice. If you have limited experience, you need to use every piece to your advantage.

Many skills from other jobs can be transferable. For example, customer service experience can be a great asset in many other career fields.

As you build your resumé, you won't need to use every piece of work experience you have when applying for a new job, but you'll still want to present yourself as a well-rounded candidate.

Success in the specific

It's a common mistake to use the same objective for every application, or to use one that is too broad.

No employer wants to read a novel about you, no matter how relevant your past experience may be. ISTOCK

Going overboard

A resumé should never exceed two pages — and if it is kept to one page, that's even better.

Resumés are meant to showcase your experience and accomplishments, and although many applicants can talk for days about their background and job experience, it is important to keep a resumé short and to the point.

Depending on the role you're applying for, you may want to use a completely different format for your resumé, removing or including sections based on the information you want to present.

Mismatching an objective

Not all resumés include an objective. Make sure that you're only using one if it's a good fit for the opportunity that you're pursuing.

It's a common mistake to use the same objective for every application, or to use one that is too broad — for example: "I am seeking full-time employment."

An objective should be directly related to the job you are applying for, and should change with every single one of your job applications.

Note that including an objective is an often-debated topic. If you are having trouble writing one, it's safer not to include one at all.

Don't downplay design

If you are applying for positions in marketing or graphic design, getting creative with your resumé is a great way to show off your skills.

- For a more traditional role or in a conservative industry, it's best to stick to a crisp, professional layout.
- You don't need exceptional design skills to compose a beautiful resumé. A quick search online can get you started with some simple examples that will help you design your own from scratch.
- A resumé should be clean, eye-catching and easy to read. Do not over-complicate your application by getting too experimental with your design — but it's okay to have some fun with it.

Summer hire attire

What to wear to work? As the humidity increases, so does the importance of keeping your look polished and professional

VICKI SALEMI
Metro World News

Ah, summer. Now that the sun has come out, your office culture may be a little more lax. Not only are the hours potentially more relaxed on Fridays — so, too, is the dress code.

There are several ways to look and feel more comfortable at work without getting onto human resources' radar screen.

Get schooled on your company's policy
Not to become the HR police or anything, but simply take a few minutes to read the rules which are probably posted on your company's intranet site.

Draw the line

Even when your office is extremely casual on normal days let alone summer Fridays, draw the line somewhere.

- If you get pulled into a meeting with your CEO, would you feel comfortable in tennis shoes? Just say no to tank tops, T-shirts and capri pants. If you're showing too much skin, you probably shouldn't be wearing it.

If you're relatively new to the office and it's your first summer at your company, it's even more important to peruse the policy instead of relying on observing colleagues for dress code cues.

Remember, you're still in a professional environment
According to a survey by OfficeTeam, a placement agency, 80 per cent of managers said how employees dress will impact whether or not they'll get promoted. Yes, your summer attire counts.

Dress in layers
Yes, even though it's summer. If you wear a linen dress to the office, bring a blazer. If you're a guy and wear a polo shirt, bring a jacket. You never know when you'll get pulled into a last-minute meeting with executives or clients. And if you don't wear that jacket at least keep one tucked away in your office for potential use. Just think, if the air conditioning is on full blast, you'll need something to prevent you from feeling like you're in the frozen tundra.

Watch the footwear
It's amazing how one outfit can make or break you depending on what's on your feet, particularly for women. Flip-flops or strappy stilettos? No. Sandals? Sure. If you're unsure about footwear, take visual hints from executives in your office. What are they sporting? Emulate them.

FLASH FOOD

From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less

This recipe makes one serving but can be easily doubled. EMILY RICHARDS

This recipe makes 15 mini burgers. EMILY RICHARDS

Turkey Bacon Sandwich
This is a new favourite! It is simple to put together, and even easier to eat. Cook the bacon while your bread is in the toaster, and slice up the tomato. With a splash of balsamic vinegar, the flavour sings out to be made a regular dinner routine.

1. Place bacon on paper towel-lined plate and microwave on high for 20 seconds or until it is hot.

2. Meanwhile, toast bread. Spread hummus on toast, and top with bacon and tomato. Drizzle with vinegar and sprinkle with pepper.

Mini Hamburgers
My kids couldn't stop eating these, and neither could the adults! They're perfect for small hands to enjoy for dinner or tuck into pita halves with lettuce for dinner on the run. You can serve them open face with lettuce and tomatoes for a new twist to dinner.

1. In bowl, stir egg and ketchup. Stir in onion, bread crumbs, oregano and pepper. Add chicken and beef and using hands mix together until well combined. Using scant 1/4 cup (60 ml) of mix, make small burger. Repeat with remaining mix.

2. Place the mini hamburgers on a greased grill over medium-high heat and grill for about 10 minutes, turning once or until no longer pink inside — or until internal temperature of 70 C (160 F) is reached. Place the mini burgers in buns to serve.

Ingredients

Turkey Bacon Sandwich
- 1 slice turkey bacon
- 1 slice whole wheat bread
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) chickpea hummus
- 2 thick slices fresh tomato
- Drizzle of aged balsamic vinegar
- Pinch fresh ground pepper

Mini Hamburgers
- 1 egg
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) ketchup
- 1 small onion, grated
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) whole wheat fresh bread crumbs
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) dried oregano
- Pinch pepper
- 8 oz (227 g) extra lean ground turkey or chicken
- 8 oz (227 g) extra lean ground beef
- 15 slider mini burger buns

NHL

Canucks to buy out Booth

Off the ice, he brought personality to the Vancouver Canucks, never afraid to talk about his faith or his passion for hunting and the outdoors.

On the ice, David Booth just couldn't fit with the Canucks. On Tuesday, the club rid itself of his six-year contract with an annual cap hit of $4.25 million by placing the 29-year-old left-winger on waivers for the purpose of a compliance buyout.

If he clears waivers, the once-31-goal scorer in Florida will become an unrestricted free agent. And the Canucks will have used the second compliance buyout afforded to them and every single NHL club under the current collective bargaining agreement.

The Canucks acquired Booth from the Florida Panthers in October of 2011. In his first season here, he scored 16 goals. The one constant to his time in Vancouver was the injuries that plagued him.

He suffered a groin injury before the hastened start of the 2013 lockout-shortened season, came back for 12 games, scored only once and then injured his ankle.

Surgery on his ankle delayed the Canucks' ability to use a buyout on him last summer. That also set him back a full year.

Despite an apparent recovery time of one year, Booth played, but the known member of John Tortorella's doghouse was made a healthy scratch, sent to Utica in the AHL and played mostly as a bottom-six forward.

'I've got their back'

Whitecaps. Robinson gaining a reputation as a players' coach

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

He didn't have the clout as some of the big-name candidates — Bob Bradley and Jason Kreis.

When the Vancouver Whitecaps couldn't land either of those two for their vacant head-coaching job, they turned to Carl Robinson, an assistant here for the two years previous.

An argument could be made that although Robinson wasn't the club's first choice, Vancouver's body of work through 13 games, its vastly improved roster and dazzling attacking style, he's proving to be the right choice.

The Whitecaps returned to training on Monday, with a 5-2-6 record, 21 points and the fifth spot in the Western Conference.

It's still early in Robinson's tenure, only seven months since he was officially introduced as the coach, taking over from the fired Martin Rennie. The stretch drive has been a foe of this club in the previous two years, and that part of the season begins in August. Stay tuned.

For now, there's plenty of reason for optimism.

The Whitecaps, with the additions of Pedro Morales, Sebastian Fernandez and Nicolas Mezquida, have complemented a group of talented forwards. Matias Laba has been solid in the midfield. This club can score. It needs to learn how to defend.

Robinson has rewarded his young players opportunities to play.

In turn, they've produced. You need only look to 23-year-old forward Erik Hurtado, the club's fifth overall pick in 2013, as the best example right now.

For all the changes Robinson has implemented, it seems the only thing he's left untouched is who he is with his players.

When Rennie was let go and the search for possible candidates began, a few players threw their support behind Robinson, speaking highly of his teaching and communication skills.

"His door's always open when you have questions," said Gershon Koffie.

You get the increasingly strong sense Robinson is what is commonly referred to as a players' coach — someone who is firm with his players when needed, but also wants to build a strong working relationship.

"It's the players believing they've got your trust," said Robinson. "They know I've got their back through thick and thin."

Next on the sked

The Whitecaps will play a pair of games next week. They host the Montreal Impact on Wednesday, then visit the Colorado Rapids on Saturday.

Mexican keeper steals the show

He was called a hero and a saviour by his Mexican teammates. His Brazilian opponents said he produced miracles.

There is no doubt that Mexico goalkeeper Guillermo Ochoa was the one responsible for spoiling Brazil's hopes of another World Cup win at its home tournament. Ochoa made a series of outstanding saves to help his side hold Brazil to a 0-0 draw on Tuesday.

The result left both teams with four points each after two games in Group A, but Brazil is ahead on goal difference going into their decisive final matches. Croatia and Cameroon meet on Wednesday for their second games after both opened with defeats.

"We can't avoid talking about their goalkeeper," Brazil striker Fred said. "He came up with at least four miracles."

What may have been Ochoa's most remarkable save of the match prevented Neymar from scoring in the 26th minute. The Brazil striker's powerful header looked set to fly just inside the post when the goalkeeper dived to his right to push the ball wide.

"It was the match of my life," said Ochoa.

Also on Tuesday

Belgium 2, Algeria 1. Belgium opened its World Cup campaign with a comeback win, relying on second-half goals from two substitutes.

South Korea 1, Russia 1. This match was marked by the first big goalkeeping error of the tournament. Igor Akinfeev spilled Lee Keun-ho's speculative shot into his own net to gift South Korea a 68th-minute lead, which was wiped out in the 74th minute.

2014 Jeep Wrangler

- Type. Two-door, convertible SUV. Rear-wheel drive with full 4X4 capability.
- Engines (hp). 3.6-litre V6 (285)
- Transmissions. Six-speed manual, 5-speed automatic
- Base price (incl. destination). $23,195

Market position

• Two-door Wrangler is the purest successor to the original 1941 Jeep.
• Sport 4X4 is the least expensive Wrangler, appealing to both budget-strapped adventurers, and serious off-roaders, the latter using it as a base to which they will add all manner of personal-preference upgrades and touches.

Points

• Powerful V6 engine for its size.
• Only vehicle that encourages you, and makes it (relatively) easy for you, to take off the doors and windshield.
• Heavy-duty part-time 4X4 means you engage it only when you need it
• Acceptable road manners, considering its off-road prioritized components and design.

The Jeep Wrangler boasts that classic Jeep appearance.

• Inside is tight, and features lots of right angles.

Safety

Standard airbags; standard front/rear disc brakes with ABS and hydraulic-assist booster; standard traction control and stability control with Hill Start Assist; Electronic Roll Mitigation and Trailer Sway Control; tire pressure monitors; fuel tank and transfer case skid plates; fog lamps and halogen headlamps

DRIVE

With this car, it's hip to be square

Review.
A modern model with the essence of the 1941 Jeep, a bit cramped but off-road ready

MIKE GOETZ
drive@metronews.ca

PHOTOS: MIKE GOETZ

Like its famous predecessors, the 2014 Jeep Wrangler Sport 4X4 has more right angles than an aluminum garden shed, and tight accommodations for anything more than two adults and their duffle bags. For the record, it seats five, but I'm thinking the rear-seat people have to be well acquainted.

But that's what you get when you're careful about not diluting the essence of that original Jeep, created in 1941 and made famous during the Second World War, and afterwards, as the world's first off-road vehicle.

The square and flat sheet metal ensures its appearance is true to those classic Jeeps, and the equipment and design is still prioritized for off-road use.

At this juncture in its long lifespan, however, a lot of people are buying this Jeep for use in the urban jungle, because of its cool factor and distinctive features. That's how I chose to spend my time with this particular test vehicle — on missions to the inner city.

With one notable caveat, the two-door Jeep Wrangler is a surprisingly capable tool for negotiating such terrain. It's got the tall-in-the-saddle view as afforded by all SUVs, a super-tight turning radius, and its shortness is great for parking and jockeying for position on congested streets.

It's got standout looks, and its fun factor, which is high to start with, can be upped by removing the soft top, and/or even the doors.

Wrangler also features a very modern powertrain — the gutsy 3.6-litre V6 with 24 valves and variable valve technology, mated to either a six-speed manual or five-speed automatic transmission.

Our "Sport" trim tester had the standard six-speed manual. At $23,195 (including destination charges) it's the least expensive Jeep Wrangler on offer, and features a satisfying blend of "just the basics," including roll-up windows, "wash out" interior, and of course, the part-time 4X4 system, with a transfer case that enables you to select 2WD High, 4WD High, or 4WD Low (the latter for going up trees and things).

The big caveat to using this interesting device on city streets is a choppy ride and lots of body action, courtesy of those heavy and "live" front and rear axles, the small wheelbase, and the high centre of gravity. But this edition of the Wrangler is quite modern.

Transformers a five-star car show

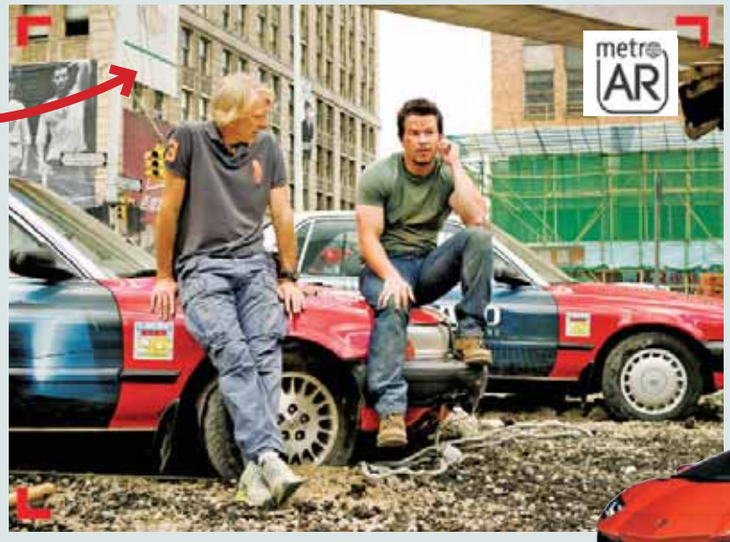
Transformers: Age of Extinction hits theatres June 27, kicking off the second trilogy of the robots in disguise saga. While Michael Bay's symphonies of special effects and ear-splitting explosions in the key of CGI Major may cause cinephiles to roll their eyes, the films are undeniable works of art if you look at them strictly as car shows.

MIKE DOJC
drive@metronews.ca

Optimus Prime

In Age of Extinction, the Papa Smurf of the Autobot flock will get a more streamlined look as a modified Western Star with plenty of after-market touches like a flaming decal, menacing exhaust stacks and more chrome than Justin Bieber's Fisker Karma.

It's a more fit and trim look for the heart and soul of the franchise. Optimus was portrayed as a Kenworth K100 cab-over truck in the 1980s cartoon and a Peterbilt 379 in earlier films.



Lockdown

If a Lambo went to high school, you bet your V12 she would be voted most likely to transform into a relentlessly ruthless badass robot, so it's no real surprise that the endorphin rush-inducing Lamborghini Aventador LP700-4 is a free agent who doesn't bat for either side. Michael Bay has intimated that Lockdown, a galaxy cruising bounty hunter who can turn his face into a giant gun, will factor large in subsequent films.

Bumblebee

The mellow yellow cutie patootie will get a couple of new looks in the new flick — a restomodded (restored, with modern guts) vintage '67 Camaro SS and a modern Camaro concept car. Either he'll switch partway through the movie, or perhaps this time around, Shia LeBeouf's old bestie will have the ability to go either way. Bumblebee, originally a Volkswagen Beetle in the cartoon, was portrayed in the first live-action transformers flick as a 1977 Camaro before getting with the times and upgrading into a 2006 Camaro concept car.

Stinger

This Decepticon lives large as a Pagani Huayra, a drool-inspiring, seven-figure dream machine powered by a 6.0-litre Mercedes-AMG twin-turbo V12 engine that can gallop to the beat of 700 ponies. In robot form, he's seen standing toe-to-toe with Bumblebee in the trailer, so odds are high we'll get to see the two bots battle it out and attempt to send the other to the scrapyard.

Drift

With a name like Drift, you'd imagine this Decepticon turned Autobot ought to perform the coolest car slides depicted on film since Fast & Furious made their Tokyo trip. Drift is a Bugatti Veyron Grand Sport Vitesse with a lightning in a bottle brisk 0-60 time of just 2.4 seconds and a top speed of 253 mph. This super-powered roadster definitely seems more in its element running full throttle in a Michael Bay film than doing a grocery run to the Whole Foods in Beverly Hills.

Shift: Saving the earth with by powering Audi sports cars and Volkswagens with electricity

Honda's small-vehicle "gateway" opens wider

Not to be confused with the now-defunct Chevrolet HHR small delivery van/wagon, Honda's upcoming all-new HR-V compact tall wagon will further grow the Japanese automaker's selection of small, efficient vehicles. Built on Honda's new Celaya, Mexico, flexible assembly line alongside the Fit small wagon, both vehicles demonstrate that "good things come in small packages," said Honda Canada official Dave Gardner. The HR-V creates a new market segment that, together with the Fit, provides a "gateway" to the Honda brand for first-time new vehicle buyers, and long-time brand loyalists. Despite its compact size, Honda credits its "spacious interior" to a uniquely designed new centre fuel tank layout. Further details about the HR-V will be announced closer to its planned end-of-year launch date.

Test-bed Audi R8 e-tron "a go" for production

Audi will build the once-cancelled R8 e-tron all-electric sports car, and says the new car will have an optimum400-kilometre range from its fully charged battery, more than twice the distance the original R8 e-tron could travel on a single charge. In fact, the automaker also confirmed it was the improved battery technology that convinced it to recommit to building the R8 e-tron. But there's a hitch that might call into question for some consumers Audi's commitment to electric technology: The car will only be manufactured "upon customer request," reports car news website Motor Authority. Audi, however, says it will use the car as a test bed to develop electric drivetrains for its more affordable, higher-production models.

Shift points

- Volkswagen plans to put tens of thousands, perhaps even hundreds of thousands, of electric vehicles on Chinese roads before the end of this decade. VW and its Chinese partners are "prepared to spend as much as $27 billion US in the next five years" to achieve that goal.
- Nissan wants you to know that it's no Johnny-come-lately to the world of electric vehicles, noting recently that its 1947 Rama EV was a direct result of Japan's then-recent war-time loss and the Allied Forces' efforts to limit gasoline supplies to the country.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You can't control your destiny every minute of every day, so let fate take its course. Unsettling things may happen over the next few days, but that doesn't mean they'll be bad for you.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Even if you're the kind of Taurus who keeps your emotions under control you will be much more outgoing than usual today. There are so many good things going on in your life that you've got to tell the world.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Be considerate of others' feelings and there is no limit to what you might achieve. You need to realize that everyone has a different destiny to fulfill.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Drop your Cancerian guard and open up. An excellent link between Venus, planet of harmony, and Jupiter in your sign indicates you will meet remarkable people over the next 24 hours. Be sociable.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Everything is going so well for you that you are even prepared to forget long-running feuds with colleagues and relatives. Make the most of it as it's unlikely to last, but while it does you'll feel great.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Socially and romantically this is one of the best times of the year for you, so don't let anyone burst the bubble of optimism that surrounds you. Your positive attitude will attract like-minded people.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Be generous with your time and money. Don't give away all your worldly goods but the planets indicate that if you show kindness to someone in need now the favour will be returned many times over.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Even if you are the sort of Scorpio who likes to stick with tried and tested methods try to be more adventurous over the next 24 hours. Take a chance on love too. A new attraction could sweep you off your feet.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
The best way to avoid an unpleasant situation is to pretend it does not exist. You are not in the mood for confrontation and there is no cosmic law that says you have to face situations or people.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
A Venus-Jupiter link is about as good an influence as you could hope for, especially where your love life is concerned. One person you meet today could become more than just a friend.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
If you feel you are not being appreciated enough in your current job then start making plans. Could you be making more of your talents elsewhere? Be open to new possibilities.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Someone you meet on your travels today or tomorrow is destined to play a role in your life over the next few months. Don't be too defensive when meeting people. SALLY BROMPTON
